Join us at the Falmouth Good Afternoon Choir - and . . . Bring A Friend

Andy Farris leads the choir and our founder is Grenville Jones. We meet every Friday afternoon from 1pm - 3pm at Falmouth Methodist Church. There is NO CHARGE for attending your first rehearsal and membership information is then available. COME ALONG WITH A FRIEND.

Andy Farris (pictured) has been involved in choirs for over 40 years starting as a boy chorister at Sheffield Cathedral from the age of 7. Follow on, he was a member of the National Youth Choir of Great Britain (and still acts as head of their Alumni Committee). After taking a Degree in vocal performance at Trinity College of Music, London, Andy went on to do professional work as a member of the chorus at Scottish Opera as well as doing solo concerts in London and abroad. Following the birth of twins in 2010 he moved from London to Cornwall and has been working for the Cornwall Music Education Hub as a vocal mentor and assistant conductor of several of their choirs, as well as running other amateur groups around the county. He is delighted to be able to join the GAC team and to help to reboot the choral scene in the Truro and Falmouth area after a long year of enforced choral inactivity and Ruth Best will be the accompanist.

There are NO AUDITIONS and everyone is welcome at our afternoon Choirs... whilst some members have sung before, many are new to choir singing - it's a great way to make new friends. You will be joining over 1000 people Singing in the Afternoons! Pictured above - the group who sang in Truro Cathedral in 2019 and yes we'll be planning more weekends away in 2022.

The Falmouth Good Afternoon Choir will be enjoying all sorts of music – from folk songs to choral favourites. If you have any questions about the Choir please contact Jody at Grenville's office by calling 01761 472468 or emailing gac@grenvillemusic.co.uk - or just come along to your first free session, with a friend of course!
